By MARJORIE SHULER WASHINGTON, Jan. 20-The takng of evidence on the causes of war was completed today by the National Conference on the Causes and Cure of War. The ensuing three days are to be devoted to hearing proposals fo the cure of war, and Saturday the conference is to adopt a program of findings on which it is hoped to base a_united program of peace for the women's organizations of the Nation.

An international conference to nsider the distribution of raw ma terials and the conservation of na-tional resources of the world was proposed by William Smith Culbert vice-chairman of the United States Tariff Commission, in a speech on the connection between raw materials, markets and war.

Expansion of the commercial and difficulties which European nations have faced, he said, and now is the opportune time to revive the propowhich America sent out invitations tions. in 1909, but which never was held.

Power Isn't Security

National power and security are not synonymous," said Mr. Culbert-son. "With several powerful nations seeking security by imperialis-tic measures the result has been uncertainty, instability and insecurity. Permanent national security is attained not by temporary expedients like armaments, but by a firmly established set of standards which regulate the relations of nations. Security comes only when nations ecept these standards and permit them to be applied against their im-mediate interests in order to benefit a fundamental cause of war, said John Foster Dulles this morning. Greed and unscrupulous measures he named as a possible secondary cause of war. He added:

To covet wealth of others we are prone to condemn. But to seek to retain our own is a homely virtue which we honor. Yet here, I think, we find the underlying economic cause of war. Changes are inevitable, and sooner or later the condi-tions which have brought certain men to a pinnacle of power and in-fluence begin to alter, and these in-dividuals see the source of their strength and power beginning to shift from beneath them. Given such a situation, they inevitably struggle against it and lay hold of whatever means may be at hand. One of the most effective of allies in such a struggle is the Covernin such a struggle is the Government itself, and under such conditions a powerful and ruling class is apt to use its wealth and position to put into power a government which, for convenience, I will call s "strong" government. By that I mean a government which has char-acteristics to make it an effective ally in the struggle against change Thus we frequently see brought into power a government which is rigid, reactionary and truculent. These characteristics are generally sought use in some internal, social

World War Blame Placed

In the case of the World War, I believe the responsibility must be placed largely upon the Austro-Hungarian monarchy and upon Russia. In each of these countries we find a small group of wealth and power which for generations had maintained itself by exploiting the masses of the people. Against the people's restlessness and desire for change, this group of individuals and set up and maintained govern-ments of a strong and ruthless char-

Communist Party Committees Press Accusations

Eg Special Cable MOSCOW, Jan. 20-Leon Trotzky's resignation as War Commissar has been accepted by a plenary session of the central and control committees of the Communist Party, which simultaneously adopted a long resolution summing up the accusations directed against Mr. Trotzky during the recent party discussion and ending with a warning that Mr. Trotzky may be removed from the central committee if he commits further breaches of party discipline.

This furnished a natural quence to the dispute in which Mr. Trotzky apeared almost completely isolated, meeting little support in-side the party. Mr. Trotzky's successor is not mentioned, but the as sistant War Commissar, Mr. Frunce is considered a likely candidate

If action is not taken by Congress to give Chicago more than 4167 second feet as a temporary measure—and there is a question of the right

Victory for Party

Based on an overwhelming mass of anti-Trotzky resolutions adopted by various party organizations and following resolutions urging Mr. removal from military work adopted by the Red Army, political workers and Communist members of the War Commissariat, the action of the plenary session marks a complete victory for the nowerful Communist Party organization over an outstanding individual figure in a bitter, prolonged controversy which first broke out last winter.

The news of Mr. Trotzky's resignation is printed on inside pages of Pravda and Izvestia, without editorial comment, and the incident is considered officially closed. This confirms the passage of the central committee's resolution to accept Mr. Trotzky's resignation, which declares that the discussion of controversial Trotzky issues, on which the central committee pronounced judgment, is finished. Mr. Trotzky, who remained at Moscow to attend the central committee's session, is expected to depart for the south in the near future and no further public discussion of his case is likely until the party congress meets in the spring.

against the established governing classes and in resistance of such threat they had set up strong govrnments of the character likely to provoke war in any quarter. The ultimatum to Serbia, the quick mobilizaton of Russia, were natural reactions of governments of such a character. Thus, I believe, history confirms the view that the principal economic cause of war is not a greed or gain, but rather the effort to void change and to maintain existng conditions.

Great Britain, perhaps more than orent isritain, perhaps more than any other nation, is menaced in its general economic strength by the vast changes which have been brought by the war. A small island supporting a large population, it has always been dependent upon performing services for others. It is a support of the property of the forming services for others. It case engaged extensively in the manufacture of raw materials and their sale abroad. Two of the most important industries in this respect are the textile industry and the iron and steel industry. Yet if you will talk with experts in the textile field and in the metallurgical of the control in the metallurgical field, you will find the opinion frequently expressed that both of these industries are ied by economic changes in the vorid today.

English industrial leaders recognize a menace to their prosperity and, as we would all do in like circumstances, are struggling against this menace. So when we see the British Government including in its demands upon Egypt the right to utilize freely the waters of the Nile irrigate the cotton development of the Sudan, that is but one manifesta tion of the efforts of the textile in-dustry to ward off danger.

"Determination to Maintain" Thus while the demand of Great Britain upon Egypt is, in a super ficial sense, aggressive and grasping in character, yet in reality the motive behind it is less the desire to extend and increase wealth and power than the determination to naintain an established industry which is seriously menaced. Economic rivalries resulting in rival imperialisms were denominated Prof. Edward Mead Earle of Colum-

What business men seek is security. What governments seek is security, economic and political. The question is how that security may best be obtained. It is for the purpose, of securing at least equality of treatment. of securing at least equality of treat-ment that he calls upon his Govern-ment for protection when he ven-tures abroad.

country took some such action. The fault is ours. We have let the mis-representations of prohibition by hostile editors go unchallenged. The readers of European newspapers have the right to have the truth given them. We purpose to supply them with the facts and show them a way to bring this truth to the partment at Yale University. Professor Baker's talk came at the end of an evening filled with evidences of the deep regard held for him. LeBaron R. Briggs, dean, was a witty and optimistic presiding officer. In a semicircle on the stage sat the "old 47's" bidden to speak from their reminiscences, the experience and enthusiasms which for them, as for so many others, had received pri-mary stimulation in undergraduate years in Workshop association.

Seated in the body of the theater were members of the audiences held together, year after year, by a common zeal for the splendid things the Workshop has been able by ceaseless effort and unflagging interest to accomplish.

Pioneer University Work

John Mason Brown '23, now an as sistant editor of the Theatre Arts Monthly, paid tribute to Professor Baker as pioneer in the establishment of an organization under the university ægis where, if they could not be exactly taught, students could have their effort molded and guided and where, if they could not see themselves wholly as others saw them they could at least see their work set forth in the terms upon which it must be judged by metropolitan audiences

Warm Homes With Far Less Fuel

Save 25% to 40% on Coal Bills: Keep Out Dust. Dirt and Draughts

The comforts of Chamberlin Metal Weather Strips are also important economics. They save and pay for themselves-in fuel, labor, and protection against dust, dirt and draughts.

In fuel alone from 25% to 40% is saved. All parts of the house are kept warm. No cold spots. No draughts. No rattling doors and windows. Furnishings are saved -and a great amount of housework is eliminated.

Chamberlin Metal Weather strips are of the type which interlocks with sash, thus insuring most satisfactory and enduring protection.

Only Chamberlin workmen install Chamberlin Weather Strips. And because we know the work is done right, we guarantee each installation for the life of the building.

GIANTS BUILDING Yellow Jackets TEAM FOR 1925

McGraw Is Out to Establish a Record for All Time as a Winning Manager

NEW YORK, Jan. 20 (A)—The New York National League Baseball Club is building formidably for the 1923 campaign, a pennant struggle that promises to put the morale of the National League quampions to one of the severest tests of their hard career.

J. J. McGraw, manager of the club, knows that his team faces a strenuous season and realizes, perhaps more close contest.

Elliott made year, when he won his fourth straight a neat save from Harold Cotton's stick pennant and he hopes to make it five after the latter had dribbled through straight this year, thus setting a mark for all time.

for all time.

Back in the early days of the game, Eoston and St. Louis clubs each won four straight pennants, the former in the National Association and the latter in the old American Association a few years later. These have never been eclipsed, but McGraw has the best chance any pilot has had in the annals of either the American or National leagues.

No Radical Changes

Lionel Conacher, Pittsburgh captain, stood out once or twice with his individual rushes, while Roger Smith took care of several St. Paul drives.
Dennis Breen was the first local athlete to break through for his attempt and he did it to perfection, meeting Goalie Roy Worters face to face only to see his attempt blocked.
Seven minutes of play had elapsed before either team spared and then with Drury, Milks and Darragh replacing the Champion's forwards and McGraw will stand pat on the major part of his lineup. He has made no radical changes and contemplates none in the array which won the 1924 flag, but is concentrating a good share of his efforts on bolstering the battery departments, where the club's outstanding weaknesses have been for everal seasons. To this end, the Giants his efforts on bolstering the battery departments, where the club's outstanding weaknesses have been for several seasons. To this end, the Giants already have collected a corps of 19 pitchers for spring training at Sarasota, Fla., in addition to new catching talent, needed to replace or aid. H. veterans upon whom he counts heavily for 1925—A. N. Nehf, H. A. McQuillan, W. D. Byan, Claude Jonnard, J. M. Bentley and V. J. Barnes. Among a dezen or more others, some of whom had trials last year, he hopes to obtain regular talent from such good pros-pects as H. E. Baldwin, obtained from Newark; John Wisner, Rochester product; W. O. Dean, Louisville recruit who declined after an impressive start a year ago; and Joseph Brad-shaw, former Toledo and Louisville

Montreal to Face Bruins Tonight HARVARD ANNOUNCES

The Boston Bruins, professional hockey team, is scheduled to open its second half of the National Hockey League race by meeting the new Montreal Hockey Club at the Boston Arena tonight. These two clubs, both new to the N. H. L. this season, opened their league activities Dec. 1 in the Arena with the local team winning the verdict, 2 to 1. Since that opening Montreal has defeated the locals twice in old, 2 to 1. Since that opening Montreal has defeated the locals twice in the new Montreal rink and the Bruins are desirous of evening the count by defeating the visitors here tonight.

The visiting Montreal forward line is about as strong as any in the league is about as strong as any in the league as long as they remain on the ice, but replenishing the regulars with substi-tutes decidedly weakens the team de-fensively and offensively. Skinner was obtained by this team from Boston for this purpose, hoping to strengthen the alternating line. The Montrealers are now in fourth place and have given every team in the league a close run whichever way the game went Last night at the Arena the Maple

Last hight at the Arena the Maple A. A. displayed its best hockey of the season and defeated the visiting Ber-lln (N. H.) sextet, 7 to 2. Four of the local goals were scored in the third period when the visitors were one and two men short through penalties, but throughout the Maples held the ad-vantage and did little of their customary wandering.

The score might have been larger but for the Berlin goalle who, until the third period, kept the Maples down to two goals, although better shooting by the Sheridan team would have been netted. Time and again the fast little local team wormed through with their local team wormed through with their snappy passing and several times had only the goalle to pass, but erratic and hurried shooting straight at the goalle prevented scores. up. Harvey Naismith caught the Pittsburghs out of position and dashed down alone, but Worters saved.
Cotton opened the second period with a rush which terminated in a freakish, bounding shot. Elliott caught it, batted it into the air and narrowly tipped it away from the net. Conacher and McCurry broke quickly on a check and got through, but Elliott made a remarkable save.

The game developed into a battle of wits. Naismith took a penalty and St. Paul held the puck. Drury secured it, but it availed naught. When Naismith got back Drury took a shot from 30 feet out and it went through. Pittsburgh elected to rush in the third period despite its one-point advantage. Just as the Crimson team last year failed to function in scoring from the foul line, it failed utterly, vesterday, in scoring from the floor. The losing five scored only four times from the floor and 13 times from foul, showing practically a reversal of last year's form. The height and the weight of the winners put Harvard under a handicap but not once did Columbia secure any big lead. With five minutes to play the score stood 22 to 20, but two great goals from the center of the floor for the Blue and White stopped a Harvard rally which might have won.

Victoria Ties With Calgary for Lead

WESTERN CANADA HOCKEY ASSOCIATION STANDING

EDMONTON, Alta., Jan. 20 (Special)—Unleashing a terrific attack in the second and third periods of their game against the Eskimos here last night, Victoria overcame a three-goal lead and finally ended up on the large lead and finally ended up on the large end of a 7 to 4 score. As a result of their win obtained in spectacular style, the Cougars climbed into a tle with Calgary, for first place in the Western Canada Hockey Association standing and with four of their next five games on home ice, seem certain of figuring in the playoff for the championship.

All through the first period the Cougars looked like a defeated team, but they struck their true form afterwards, employing a brand of combina-

REGINA, Sask, Jan. 29 (Special)—Reytha defeated Vancouver at the present eastern division of the U. S. A. H. A. which may be compaised of New Haven, Providence, New York, Philadelphia and Geran's Springfield Arena. His contract calls for the next 10 years, during which into the whole the game was fast and the Capitals were working like a machine, a type of playing not in accord with their usual performance.

Their forward line was playing excellent combination and their defense was effective. McCusker, the Capitals' goalle, was playing his usual cool game. The Maroons, on the other hand, did not seem so well organized in their play, and yet their attacks on the Capitals' goal were just as frequent as the locals.

Special from Monitor Bureau CHICAGO, Ill., Jan. 20—Continuing its tour of rival courts, Drake University occupies chief attention in the basketball title race of the Missouri Valley Conference during the next seven days. Only three skirmishes are scheduled for the circuit and Casch. O. M. uled for the circuit and Coach O. M. Solem's travelers appear in two of them. University of Nebraska, which leads the league with three straight victories, will not be disturbed because it has no game in prospect.

Washington University may climb a little closer to Nebraska, however, if it defeats Drake when the latter invades St. Louis on Friday. Coach D. S. White's five opened the season with a victory, 32 to 30, over University of Oklahoma last week, showing prom-ise of bringing forward a number of even the record with Missouri, as the Tigers captured the honors in their first meeting, 28 to 21. Drake has lost four of five games, dropping a battle last night to Kansas State Agricultural, College, 33 to 17, and one on Saturday to Nebraska, 20 to 8. Drake's victory was at the expense of Grin-nell College, 19 to 18.

nell College, 19 to 18.

Lack of basket shooting still handicaps the Des Moines five. M. A. Mantz
"26, forward, is doing most of the scoring. In the first four games he piled up 26 points, made chiefly by 10 baskets. At Missouri they run up against D. W. Joyner '27, forward, star scorer. Joyner slipped from first in the league to second with 34 points this week. He has recorded 18 bas-

Iowa State has its hands full with R Grinnell. The Ames contingent, though it improved its basket accuracy against F. Oklahoma last night, has yet to break into the winning column. The 27-to-24 count, however, was encouraging, as it showed Coach M. S. Chandler's men are making some progress in the development of an offensive, though development of an offensive, though still lacking a capable defense. Grinnell takes to Ames a high scorer in F. D. Moran '26, forward, who counted 22 points in three games.

A. T. Ackerman '25 University of Kansas, may lose the scoring leadership he seized this week. His team has no contest in prospect. He recorded 42 points in four games, made on 18 baskets and six free throws. This gives him so thin a margin over Joyner of Missouri that the latter is Joyner of Missouri that the latter is Scored basket for Kansas State.

Kansas State advanced C. L. Bunker

'25, forward, with 36 points, for third place this week. In three games he made 15 baskets and six free throws. The Manhattan crew won its last three games, including a triumph over Kansas, to which Bunker contributed eight baskets and three fouls. The victory over Iowa State was featured by a ringer tossed by an opposing forward, L. T. Raff [25, Ames captain, who forgot about the change in goals between halves. Oklahoma's tour during the period brought two victories in three engagements. The Sooners reveal a general division of scoring power among the players with F. H. McBride '26, for-ward, and J. F. Moore '26, gard, dividing top honors at 32 points each.

GARDNER ELECTED LONGWOOD C. C. HEAD

As a result of the elections of the Longwood Cricket Club, held last night, in its new home at Chestnut Hill, G. P. Gardner Jr. will continue in the office of president which he took charge of as successor to Edwin Sheafe in the fall of 1924. The outstanding discussion of the meeting was that of erecting a memorial to former President Sheafe.

The task of providing a suitable remembrance was delegated to a committee that will be appointed by Presi-nittee that will be appointed by Presi-lent Gardner.

Team Championship -Seven Teams Entered

Special from Monitor Bureau NEW YORK, Jan. 20—Three junior foilsmen of the Fencers' Club of New Class C squash tennis championship will be confined to the 16 matches in the third round. The second round was completed yesterday without further surprises, and the various leaders will now begin to encounter each other. The leading winners yesterday were F. W. Dort, of the Harvard Club, where the event is being held, and Francis Day, of the Yale Club. Dort encountered Peter Grimm, of the Columbia team, and utterly demolished the drives of Grimm by skillful angle play, winning by a score of 15—4, 15—6. Day encountered Sigmund Spaeth of the Princeton Club, and also won in straight games, 15—9, 15—10.

The hardest battle, however, was between F. B. Lund, another Harvard defeated the Military Academy, 5 bouts watchful, grim cricket, appropriate to the occasion, Hendren went after the bowling in much freer fashion. Roy Kilner and A. E. R. Gilligan were dismissed for under 10 runs apiece and then A. F. Freeman joined Hendren for the last wicket. The last named kept up his end gallantly until Eng-land's innings were concluded with Hendren's dismissal. Nothwithstand-ing their big first innings lead, the Australians batted warily going on to wicket the second time, and when stumps were drawn, the scoreboard showed 211 runs for three men out England's bowling was weakened by the fact that Gilligan was obliged to refrain from bowling and Freeman. F E. Woolley, and M. W. Tate doing so under difficulties, were surprisingly good. H. L. Collins and Taylor both fell to the Kent "googlie" expert, Freeman. Undefeated batsmen at the close were Ryder 86 not out, and Ponsford 40 not out.

"What do I advise? In this case. to look about nearer home. Going to strange lands to seek hypothetical work is very risky. My one outstanding bit of advice to any girl who is leaving home to find a job in another city is—bring enough money to live on for six months at least. Finding the right position is often a long, discouraging task. Although sometimes a fine opportunity comes easily and quickly. I feel that girls should have the morale of a firm financial foundation behind them.

"It is good to see the increasing efficiency of women in professional fields. It is good to know that women are appreciating the need for fitting their jobs and it is good to know that measures are being taken to find the right job for the right woman and the right woman for the right job.'

Come Snows, and One Touch of Winter Sports Makes the Whole World Kin

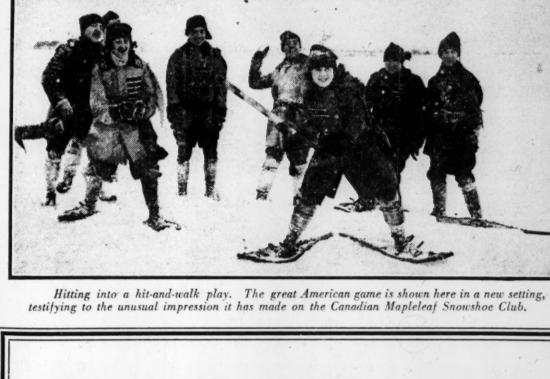

A typical week-end scene in any one of a dozen spots in Montreal. Thousands of workers employed in Canadian shops and offices find in skiing the recreation and amusement most desired. And the cost is just a little climb up-hill.

Swiss skiing silhouettes. One of the innovations of this mile-a-minute sport, and one that requires great dexterity, is skiing in couples. Here we see the fliers—the critical leap completed alighting at express train speed to continue their exhilarating journey together.

No speed limit here. A jolly bobsleigh party rounding Ice Corner on the famous bob-run in Arosa. With an abundance of snow, a glistening sun, and the Alps to use for coasting, no wonder the population of Switzerland is swelled during the glorious winter time.

Montrealers do not have to go far to enjoy winter sports. Snowshoe tramping, however, calls for some scenery as well as snow. Hence the popularity of Mount Royal Park.

Here Beauty and Performance Meet

Nothing could be more logical than the preference women are showing for this newest Chandler

Its body, by Fisher, is characterized by an aristocratic beauty and a minute perfection of detail that satisfies the subtlest feminine demand for luxurious surroundings.

And in its performance, they discover those qualities that all women instinctively expect in their personal car:

Unfailing dependability, flawless smoothness, and a wealth of power such as the famous Pikes Peak Motor alone can provide-

Easy steering—sure brakes—

And the simplified, noiseless, unfailing gear changing made possible by the Traffic Transmission-an exclusive Chandler feature.

It is no exaggeration to say that the woman who drives this newest Chandler sedan gains an entirely new idea of motoring satisfaction.

Three of the lovers, with Miss Athene Seyler first in distinction, were quite good; but Miss Edith Evans' personality and methods are hardly suited to the happy interpretation of Helena. The tendency of all four to play these romantics as seems to this reviewer quite wrong.

The more passionate the earnestness that the "two of both kinds" can put

Nor was this high jubilation over Shakespeare redivivus confined to the playgoing public; the players themselves, one hears, were equally enthusiastic; and the rehearsals were as much a joy as a toil.

The "Dream," moreover, being one of the few Elizabethan plays that lend themselves naturally to a modern elaborate setting, the knowledge that Mr. Basil Dean had been given carte-blanche to exercise his talent for production upon the noble stage of the Theater Royal; and the further information that Michel Fokine was intrusted with the arrangement of dances, to Mendels-

Distinguished Cast

As for the acting, the many distinguished names in the cast assure a general success though the qualities, and training, needed for efficient Shakespearean interpretation are so many, and so special, that names alone can afford no accurate forecast of the result, as was at once evident in the Theseus of Mr. Allan Jeayes, who, though a very excellent actor, in modern work, showed that he has not yet mastered the delivery of Shakespearean verse. Much of the acting. nevertheless, was very sound, espe cially that of the clowns and of the fairy king and queen—as pleasing a pair as one remembers to have seen.

throughout the performance defects that might easily have been eliminated, the production, as a whole, was magnificent, radiantly beautiful, full of robust humor, melodious too, and delightful, whether to thought, eye, or ear. The forest setting made a charming picture, especially in the softer lights, with the gnomes and fairies gamboling and dancing about the haunted glade, flitting between the tree trunks, and peeping at you from behind bowlder and bank.

The classical State Schauspielhaus headed the list with an utterly new departure, giving a performance of "Charley's Aunt," with Werner Krauss in the title rôle. It is a far cry from "Wallenstein" to "Charley's Aunt," but Herr Krauss acquitted himself admirably; he evidently enjoyed the change and carried the delighted audience with him. It is true that it was not the motherly old aunt that we were accustomed to, but a pow-

This feature applies to ladies' colored shoes as well, as seen in the new price list of one of the larger manufacturers of medium grades of ladies' low cuts. The advances, if the cut is from colored kip, range from 7½c to 15c. But if the cut is from colored calf the advances range from 15c to 30c a pair. The justice of the advances is admitted by those who are familiar with the situation tanners are facing, especially when the higher quotations for raw stock are considered. NEW YORK, Jan. 20 (Special)—
The prevailing observation concerning the steel trade is this. As far as new business is concerned, affairs are exbusiness is concerned, affairs are extremely quiet in the east, this applying to such selling centers as Boston, New York. Philadelphia, and Baltimore. However, for Pittsburgh and all points west, there is a very fair amount of new inquiries and new orders. In all districts, both east and west, specifications against old orders are being sent in very freely.

Makers attribute the quietness in the east to the influence of inventory taking and to the possibility that consumers thought a triffs too heavily in Supers thought a triffs too heavily in Supers thought a triffs too heavily in Sklyn Ed gen 6s 8 '39.

Makers attribute the quietness in the east to the influence of inventory taking and to the possibility that consumers bought a trifle too heavily in post-December, being carried away by post-election enthusiasm.

Notwithstanding, the complexion of things is very rosy. The car builders, for instance, state that their order books are unusually well filled, which means business for a great variety of steel makers.

A canvass of the oil companies re-veals that much steel pipe will be bought in the next few months. There is not much let up in the purchasing of fabricated structural steel and the railroads continue to place large ton-nages of rails.

Near Capacity Operations The United States Steel Corporation is working at 93 per cent of capacity, and the average for the entire industry is close to 87 per cent. Many companies are working at full practical capacity, theoretical capacity being rarely attained because some machinery is always idle while undergoing

As a reflection of the heavy operating rate comes a scarcity of semi-finished steel. Instead of selling that grade in the open market the steel companies are converting it into their own finished product. That has caused a stiffening of prices.

Thus, sheet bars are selling at $40 a ton, an advance of $2; billets have become firm at $38; skelp sells at 2@ 2.10c a pound, Pittsburgh, with pros-pects of the lower figure soon disappearing.

Makers of galvanized sheets are hit Makers of galvanized sheets are hit hard by advancing prices. Their sheet bars cost them more and slab zinc is the highest in price for many months. Accordingly, the galvanized sheet makers are the firmest they have been in a long time, quoting 4.75c a pound, Pittsburgh. The jobbers expect to mark up zincked sheets soon.

The H. B. Smith Company, Westfield, Mass., has bought 3000 tons of iron and will probably take 2500 tons additional. The Central Foundry Company wants 3000 tons. In fact, total inquiry pending along the Atlantic seaboard is close to 40,000 tons. Although higher prices are expected in iron, advances will be moderate because of the danger of a flood of foreign from entering. As American con-sumers become educated to the use of foreign iron, it becomes more popu-lar with them. New Plan Shows You How to Build a Comfortable Fortune With Absolute Safety

O YOU know how to invest your money in high grade securities? How to reinvest the interest in such a way that your principal will double in a surprisingly short time? And how to do this with

Here is a plan which shows you how to build a comfortable fortune with absolute safety. It shows how to make use of the science known to all financiers. The rapid way in which money grows when invested according to this plan is a surprise to the average man or woman.

This remarkable plan is fully explained in an important book. This book tells you how to accumulate $10,000, $25,000 or even $50,000 in a span of years. It outlines for you the most successful plan ever developed for the scientific accumulation of money through investing in First Mortgage Real Estate Bonds. It tells clearly and definitely how you can by systematic investing create a good sized estate-all without risk or speculation of any sort.

This book will be sent absolutely free to every man or woman requesting it. Mail the request blank for your copy at once. It may change your whole course.

The outfit shown in the accompanying illustrations incorporates a number of interesting features. Only two dials are used for tuning, the settings on the other instruments remaining fixed when once adjusted. Silvered dials "snap up" the appearance of the front panel. Such good operation was obtained with the original tubes that the recent ancouncement of the development of he new tube presented an irresistible line to experiment with it in this outfit, in an effort to improve results. The time spent in this work has been amply repaid by the satisfaction gained from the receiver in its present form. The volume and sensitivity have been increased greatly and the operation made more

Sodion vs. (rystal

The fundamental reflex circuit, which was modified for use with a tube detector, provides one stage of radio frequency amplification, detecor, and one stage of reflexed audio frequency amplification-using one tube. The use of crystal detectors in the past was usually accompanied by poor reception when the cat-whisker was jarred off the sensitive point on the crystal right in the middle of a good program. It has hap-pened to all of us! Then the fixed crystal detector came, and extensive research work resulted in the perfection of crystal detectors which stand up under a surprising amount of rough handling and abuse.

The fact still remains, however, that crystal detectors are not comparable with soft tube detectors as to sensitivity. Even the best of cryscannot come up to good UVaccepted as being an extremely sensitive detector. However, to realize the full efficiency of this tube, it must he used correctly, with the other parts of the circuit of the proper values. The quality produced by it is equal to the crystal. These advantages are all secured in the new sodion reflex receiver, and, in addition, it has both an external and internal appearance which leaves little to be desired by even the most exacting fan.

So Ellen Elizabeth moved her family into one of the sleeves and set her little dog, Bunty, in the doorway. Patty, after some hesitation and a cautious glance across to the fields, walked her family into the other side of the double house. They found many interesting things about this over-coat house and the doll families seemed to fit right into it.

> The Nepman soon felt the effects of this resolution. He found himself able to buy goods from the state trusts only with great difficulty. His credit facilities were curtailed. Co-operative stores, lavishly financed by the state, sprang up in the neighborhood and undersold him ruthlessly. The tax collector viewed him with no friendly eye. All in all, the Nepman has found the sledding pretty rough during the last few months.

But now a ray of hope for the hard-pressed private trader has appeared on the horizon. As a rule private business men derive little pleasure from the pronouncements of Soviet leaders; but A. I. Rykoff's speech before the recent trade union congress must have filled the breasts of the Nepmen with relief and grati-tude. For the Prime Minister declared very frankly that the co-op-eratives were demanding and absorbing more than their share of the nation's credit resources, and that the industries must have cash customers. The Nepman, it should be observed, is somehow always apt to observed, is somehow always apt to be better provided with cash than be better provided with cash than the representative of a co-operative Several significant developments have followed Mr. Rykoff's speech. The Textile Syndicate has given out an order that 20 per cent of its goods must be sold for spot cash. when it gave the trophy to the college able to win 10 consecutive years. Occasions, it has by tenacity of purthat, so long as the tSate controls There is nothing to show that unequal competition was expected; but Columbia's win this year which carried the trophy has made it a realization—and one that takes away all interest in sport. Harvard, Yale and Princeton have, without doubt, sensed this situation, making the radical change in the best interest of chess.

Columbia is now free to ally itself.

Now that the reparations issue has passed, at any rate temporarily, out of the immediate foreground of European problems, another question, not less difficult to solve, has moved forward into its place. That is the question of the evacuation of the Rhineland and the bridgeheads over the Rhine.

Under the Treaty of Versailles it is laid down that "as a guarantee for the execution of the present treaty by Germany, the German territory situated to the west of the Rhine, together with the bridgeheads, will be occupied by allied and associated troops for a period of fifteen years from the coming into force of the present It is also provided, however, that "if the conditions of the present treaty are faithfully carried out by Germany," the process of evacuation shall be hastened, the Cologne bridgehead being evacuated at the end of five years, the Coblenz bridgehead at the end of ten years, and the Mainz bridgehead at the end of fifteen years.

The first of these periods expired on Jan. 10. The British and French governments decided, on their own initiative, that conditions precedent to evacuation do not exist. Germany has protested bitterly, for, she asks, if the Allies are to be the judges in this one case, will the evacuation ever take place? The Allies justify their action on the ground that the conditions of the treaty in regard to disarmament by Germany have not been carried out, that the committee of inquiry into German disarmament has not yet completed its labors, and says that it has been obstructed in its inquiries, and that any final decision must be postponed until its report has been received and considered. The Germans reply that while the disarmament commission may have discovered some trivial concealment of arms by overzealous individuals, Germany is patently and demonstrably disarmed in the sense that she is utterly incapable of fighting France or any other European power. She urges further that the Allies have no right arbitrarily to prolong the occupation without consulting

It is not really necessary to enter upon the merits of this argument. It is obviously possible for the Allies to find legalistic arguments which would justify the continuance of the occupation of the Rhineland forever. For the Treaty also provides that if at the end of the fifteen-year period "the guarantees against unprovoked aggression by Germany are not considered sufficient by the allied and associated governments, the evacuation of the occupying troops may be delayed to the extent regarded as necessary for the purpose of obtaining the required guaran-Similarly it is no less possible for the Germans to argue that their army is no more than the 100,000 allowed under the Treaty, that their equipment is manifestly wholly inadequate for war, and that any fair-minded judicial authority would say that in substance they had complied with the provisions of the Treaty, and that the evacuation of the Rhineland ought consequently to commence. The real difficulties are not the surface ones at all, but the underlying ones. When the Treaty of Versailles was drafted the underlying assumption was that a League of Nations into being actively supported by all the great powers, and that by the time the period for the occupation of the Rhineland had expired a permanent and effective system for guaranteeing the security of all nations would have been worked out. Events have wholly disappointed that expectation. The League of Nations exists, but in a mutilated form. The time for evacuation has arrived, but practically nothing effective has yet been done to reduce land armaments all round or to create any alternative guarantees of security. There is the real difficulty. France has security so long as the Rhineland and its bridges are occupied. She is not afraid of Germany or its present-day armaments so long as the Allies are on the Rhine. What concerns her is what is to happen after they are withdrawn. The military tradition of Germany still persists. It is kept alive by voluntary organizations of all kinds. It would not take a great many-years for her to become once more a formidable military power, if she were allowed to do so.

Yet Germany manifestly cannot be kept in military subjection forever. Sooner or later equality must be restored. How is France to be guaranteed that Germany will not then turn her strength once more against her western neighbor? That is the real problem which underlies the Rhineland issue—the old problem of security and the balance of power. How is it to be solved? What has Mr. Chamberlain to propose? Seemingly the solution of the problem must be found in Great Britain, since the United States seems disinclined to exercise other functions in Europe than those appertaining to a debt collector.

Public men have urged drastic economy as the peace-time policy for Canada ever since the end of the war. In 1914, Canada's net debt amounted to $335,996.-850. It increased in the subsequent nine years to $2,453,776,869, according to official figures in the Canada Year Book. During the same period, the average rate of interest on interestbearing debt went up from 3.52 per cent to 5.125 per cent. There has been no corresponding increase in the population of Canada: emigration from the Dominion has rather tended to exceed immigration. Consequently, the tax burden on the Canadian people has become one of the main topics of discussion. The president of the Royal Bank of Canada, Sir Herbert Holt, recently expressed the view that taxation is foremost among the national problems of Canada. While there has been a substantial movement toward relief in taxation been made toward reducing taxation in Great Britain, there has been no corresponding relief in Canada. The Geddes Committee instituted economies in Great Britain. The budget system in the United States, installed by General Dawes, is credited with having cut federal expenditures in half in the course of three years. Sir Herbert Holt recognized that the receipts of the Dominion Government are now barely sufficient to cover current expenditures, but he recommended the establishment of a central budget bureau in Canada, similar to that which is in operation in the United States, so that public funds would be spent on bare necessi-

Public opinion in Canada is agreed on the necessity of economy in public expenditure, but there are conflicting views on the meaning of that much repeated word. Economy is generally taken to mean the application of an ax to cut down expenditure, although there are occaslons when it would be more economical to spend than to practice deprivation. It might have been more economical, from one point of view, to allow the Canadian Northern and the Grand Trunk Pacific railways to go bankrupt than for the people of Canada to shoulder the burden of annual deficits, as they did when they took over the defaulting private railways. But the national credit of Canada would hardly have benefited by such "economy."

In justice to the Canadian people, it should be recognized that the Dominion has been practicing economy for several years. Expenditure on naval defense is an extreme example. The naval expenditure of Great Britain per capita, as quoted by Maj.-Gen. F. L. Lessard in Montreal recently, is $6.72; in Australia, it is $2.04; in New Zealand, $1.14: Canada's expenditure for naval defense is 17 cents per capita. Without denying the necessity of continued vigilance in all measures of public expenditure, it is evident that something more effective than simple retrenchment is needed in order satisfactorily to speed up the wheels of industry in the Dominion.

Teaching the Gospel of Peace

Federation of Education Associations, declared that it is possible to bring about an era of universal peace only as the world turns away from thoughts of hatred and learns the lesson of friendship, love and justice. The occasion for these remarks was the presentation, under the auspices of the federation, of the Raphael Herman peace award to Dr. David Starr Jordan, president emeritus of Stanford University. Quite appropriately Dr. Thomas outlined the aims of the educators for whom he spoke. He said he was convinced that the logical beginning of an effective campaign for world peace was in the education of the children, who should be taught to love, rather than to hate.

That of course, is getting back to the fundamentals. Perhaps it is because the rule is so simple and the duty so plain that for hundreds of years the educators and teachers have failed to heed it. But the speaker insisted that if enmity and hatred can be engendered as national or individual characteristics, friendship and justice may be cultivated also. No one who cares to look back even a few years can doubt that the people of the world have paid a tremendous price for their failure to realize this simple truth. And they are still paying, and will continue to pay, until there is gained a still clearer realization of the utter folly of provoking and waging armed warfare.

But this metamorphosis, this awakening from a mesmerism induced and encouraged by centuries of wrong thinking, may not come as suddenly as some have hoped. Human nature is not changed in a moment. An armed truce is no absolute insurer of continued peace. Neither are world courts or leagues of nations, any more than are treaties which at the whim of an individual or of a nation may be discarded as mere scraps of paper, the sure safeguard against a return of war. These, or any one of them, to be effective, must have behind them the support of peoples who have learned the lesson, who have gained an understanding of the spiritual as well as of the material values of peace.

Surely it is the desire of every civilized people that this broader and better humanitarian view be gained. Perhaps it has always been the hope that some day, by some means, war might be outlawed. But the realization of this hope has been deferred, it may be, because the straight and simple way has not appeared. It seems easier to follow when it is realized that those who seek it need not yield an iota of their patriotism. In greater love of one's own country there is engendered a truer fellowship for all markind. There is no impassable barrier between patriotism and philanthropy, between love of country and humanitarianism. As Dr. Thomas points out in defining the scope of the movement in behalf of this broader education:

We would recognize the world as a great community with streets and alleys and convenient modes of communication and interdependence of commodities and of thought, whose peoples are of common origin as well as of common destiny.

But in the realization that the work to be accomplished is revolutionary in a sense, and that realization of the objective may not come in a moment or in a generation, Dr. Thomas casts this dependable anchor to windward, as it were:

In a war emergency, we would favor the program advanced by The Christian Science Monitor of the conscription of both labor and wealth as well as our young men

Perhaps it is by this method that the great lesson must first be impressed. Self-interest causes one to see quite clearly. "Poor Richard" is quoted as having said, "If angry, count ten; if very angry, count a hundred." So it may be that when it is realized that war, should it come. will be the concern of all, and that sacrifices will be equalized as nearly as possible, there will be a clearer realization that peace also is the concern of all. When this fact is impressed upon a nation there will come the opportunity in the United States, and some progress has and the desire to learn the great lesson

While speaking at a dinner given in Washington by the American Society of Newspaper

Mr. Coolidge Discusses Newspapers

Editors, President Coolidge clearly defined the line separating education and propaganda. "Propaganda," he said, "seeks to close the mind, while education seeks to open it." He continued: "Of education and of real information we cannot get too much. But of propaganda which is tainted and perverted information we cannot have too little." The President took occasion to charge the editors and the newspapers which they represent with high responsibility. The very cause of liberty, he said, is dependent upon the freedom of the press, and in the keeping of the press is that idealism which, he somewhat tersely observed, 'is the chief idea of the American people.'

Of course the President realized that he was speaking to a much larger audience than that assembled before him. So when he said that, in his opinion, American newspapers of today are the best in the world, he was not merely speaking to newspaper editors. He based his estimate upon his appreciation of the service which newspapers as a whole are rendering as the promoters and conservators of progressive thought. He refused to admit concern because of the alleged "commercialism" of the press, and the expressed fear that those who own and control the newspapers will use them to support their private interests, rather than the general interests of the public. The measure of a newspaper's success and usefulness, he finds, is its service to the public. "There will be little occasion for worry about who owns a newspaper,' he said. "so long as its attitudes on public questions are such as to promote the public welfare.'

Those who were the President's hosts must have realized that the address they were permitted to listen to was no mere academic pronouncement, no encouraging flattery designed to persuade them to adopt some new or untried editorial or managerial policy. As a body they represent the leading newspapers in upward of 200 of the larger American cities. Most of them are veterans with years of practical experience as editors and news purveyors. They are not experimenters or adventurers. So they must have regarded more as a charge than as mere commendation this generous and thoughtful appraisal by their guest:

I believe that our American press is more independent more reliable and less partisan today than at any other time in its history. I believe this of our press precisely as I believe it of those who manage our public affairs Both are cleaner, finer, less influenced by improper considerations than ever before. Whoever disagrees with this judgment must take the chance of marking himself as ignorant of conditions which notoriously affected our public life, thoughts and methods, even within the memory of many men who are still among us.

No thoughtful American will be inclined to resent the assertion that he is one of a nation of idealists. It is the President's conviction that it is to idealism that the American people never fail strongly and lastingly to react. It is to this sentiment that every newspaper that hopes to succeed must appeal, constantly and consistently. And it is in this direction, according to Mr. Coolidge, that the public press can lend its strongest support to the Government. Surely there must come a sense of responsibility when one in the position of Chief Executive of a great democracy says, "My ultimate faith I would place in the high idealism of the editorial room of the American newspaper

Editorial Notes

What's in a name, anyhow? Are we not assured that a rose by any other name would smell as sweet? And presumably Mr. I, who has just been discovered at Johns Hopkins University, would be a very similar individual to what he is if his name was as long as his arm. In his particular case, however, philologists have declared that his name must be the shortest in existence because it is composed of but one letter, and that one the letter which uses less ink than any other of the alphabet. He certainly may lay claim, therefore, to a distinction which but few others can enjoy. His strange cognomen recalls the incident in which a boy named Mee attended a certain school. On some offense being committed, the teacher demanded to know who was responsible. Whereupon one pupil answered, "Please, sir, Mee did it," and the story goes that he was promptly punished both for the delinquency and also for making a mistake of grammar

While many art and other collections have a history all their own, the Von Bissing collection of Egyptian art, which constitutes one of the main contents of the new museum recently opened at The Hague, has enjoyed perhaps a peculiarly checkered career. This collection was gathered together while Herr von Bissing was working in the Cairo Museum and taking part in the British researches in Egypt. It served mainly as material for study at Munich and was nearly destroyed during the Bavarian revolution. The objects composing it, however, were hurriedly hidden in farms, with the assistance of a workman and later a Dutch friend of the professor's and the Dutch Government helped him to bring the collection to Holland. Now at last it has found a haven of safety, and it is entitled to remain there for long in peace!

Although Maj.-Gen. Charles P. Summerall, in his first public utterance since assuming command of the Second Army Corps area, said that the United States was "infinitely better off than it would have been had there not been a great war," this does not mean that the country would give general assent to this proposition, should it have the opportunity to vote upon it. This ancient belief concerning war was dissipated too completely during the years 1914-1918 for the majority of participants to have forgotten so soon the lessons they then learned. No! War is always an evil. In certain instances it may be the lesser of two evils. But never can it become anything other than that which by its inherent nature it inescapably is.

Beware of Poets!

Madrid, Jan. 1. At Christmas one should beware of poets and be kind to dustmen. This is how I know it: Christmas Eve came. Scores of people were in the streets marching up and down, beating drums, and blowing trumpets. Other people stayed at home and ate marzipan and a wet looking fish called bream. Long before the scores of people had tired of belaboring tin cans and drums, and before the other people had finished their marzipan, Christmas Day had come, a wet and foggy Discreetly allowing for a late breakfast, people began There were the first postman, the second postman, the parcel postman, and the postman who brings the registered letters. There were the portero, the night watchman, the lamplighter, the bank messengers, a telegraph boy, the baker's man, the street cleaners, and a man from the underworld who is only seen above ground once a year. He said he was "the watchman of which was his delicate professional of saying he was the sewerman. There was also the

Each of these people had put smiles on their faces. Some said briefly, with emotion, "Merry Christmas." Others-these were the postmen-presented a printed card bearing their names. One read: "Julio Albornez y Garcia wishes you a Merry Christmas.'

But it was the dustman who combined the poet's skill and the artist's intuition. He presented a printed card bearing a drawing of himself and his donkey. By the donkey, on the ground, was a basket discreetly vague. Sticking out of the basket was an umbrella. Only the intuition of an artist could have put the umbrella there. Underneath the drawing were eight lines of verse, running thus: "A hard life is that of the humble dustman, who is always weary, downcast and without money. And at Chrisimas he is at his wits' ends, for he cannot celebrate if you don't give him something." Everyone's good were reciprocated in the usual way.

Beware of poets! But the old question arises, How is one to know a poet when one sees one? At one time a poet was known by the extravagance of his dress. Nowadays it is hard to distinguish the poet from the railway prospector. Who would have suspected the dustman!

Anarchists of the most terrifying Barcelona traditions keep their hair decently cut, are clean shaven and smile tenderly-and not in the old conspirational fashion-at little children. Lyric poets are become as sleek as shopwalkers, and smile at one over high stiff linen collar: One thinks they are going to offer one a yard and threequarters of their best vers libre. Dustmen are poets and one must tread carefully with poets.

Prenduro was a great poet. Everybody said so. Spanlards, tall and terrifying, would catch me by the elbow and say quietly. "Have you met Prenduro yet?" would say, "No," "What!" they would shout, pushing me away from them and looking me up and down Prenduro yet! But he is marvelous! Hombre, you must meet Prenduro now, this very minute," they would shout, waving their arms and beating me on the back, and running off to find Prenduro.

I met Prenduro at his tertulia. Eight or nine people who wrote or who talked about people who wrote used to meet every night. They had met every night for years. The tertulia used to gather at nine o'clock, before dinner There were Prenduro, Garcia, Irraurequi, Cayo, Marchal-Castro, Rojas, and others. Their work was to present one another with signed copies of their books, and to read one another's articles.

These gentlemen spent their time denouncing, praising, appraising and arguing in print about one another's ideas during the day, so that when the tertulia met in the evening there was nothing left to be said. were brilliant, imposing periods of silence, broken oftenest by Irraurequi who, being a Basque, was a restless man. He | into the street.

would listen to the silence for awhile, say "I must be going immediately," and stay another half an hour. Only once, when Cayo was made a member, of the Academy, was there any discussion. Irraurequi looked disgruntled and said, "Yesterday one of us. Today in the Academy." "Fantastic," said Prenduro. "What is the Academy coming to!"

Those were the first words I had heard the great Preuduro speak since our first meeting, though for twenty-three successive evenings I had joined the tertulia. Prenduro was obviously a great poet. He had an innocent bowler hat. His hair was cropped. He shaved. He washed. He wore a high stiff collar with a blue and purple tie. He wore black gaiters. His face was as still as a pool. He stared at the ceiling and sometimes at the floor. smiled without showing his teeth.

He rarely spoke. He used to pull newspaper cuttings out of his waistcoat pocket and hand them to his friends He talked in newspaper cuttings and, to judge by the headings, he was very versatile. The export of oranges the import of toys, the man in Alicante who found a pearl worth 3000 pesetas in an oyster, are among the subjects I remember.

"Anyone would think you collected subjects for topical and commercial verse," said Irraurequi one day Prenduro handed him a cutting. Whenever Irraurequi tried to break the silence and start an argument, Prenduro would give him a cutting.

Prenduro used to arrive first at the tertulia. After giving him time to arrange his chair, to put his hat under the table and to settle into a gentle meditation, I would come and sit at a respectful distance. There was, I used to imagine, all the distance of prose from poetry be tween us.

Prenduro would gather a handful of toothpicks-without which no Spanish café can hope to have an elegant clientele-and shoot them pensively, poetically, the room. A Spanish railway prospector would never have done that with a handful of toothpicks.

Prenduro would stare at the lapel of my coat and I would fear he was going to talk about his poems. I had read a line of his works: after twenty-three evenings of his beautiful silences, crowned by that sudden exclama tion, "Fantastic," I began to feel the man must be vastly more important than his work. But Prenduro did not mention his poems, though I went hot and cold the evening be gave me a cutting entitled, "In Cadiz the exmayor gets poetic justice." That was as far as Prenduro

It was the fourth evening after Christmas Eve that I carned how careful one should be with poets. The ter tulia was assembled and a pugnacious remark by Irraure qui had just resulted in one of the most brilliant silences have ever experienced. Prenduro was all but asleep. Marchal-Castro, whose leading articles have made Span ish cabinets trouble, was making a paper boat. I took the boat from him and unfolded it. The paper bore a printed picture of a dustman and his donkey. There was in umbrella sticking out of the basket, at the donkey's feet. Beneath the drawing were eight lines of verse.

Who would have thought," I said, waving the paper so that Prenduro opened one eye, "who would have thought a Madrid dustman would have had the wit and skill to write this?"

Prenduro opened the other eye. Irraurequi snatched the paper from me. Prendure searched his pockets for a cutting but could not find one. Irraurequi laughed and

'A dustman never wrote this. Any hard-up poet would dozen like this for five pesetas. Listen to it," he and read: "'A hard life is that of the humble cried, and read: dustman who is always weary, downcast and without

The World's Great Capitals: The Week in Rome

Rome Jan. 20 It is semiofficially announced that the Chamber of Deputies will reopen on Feb. 10 to approve the estimates, the new press law and the bill against secret societies. The Senate will resume its sitting tomorrow, but it is not expected that any debate of importance will be made before next week, as the commission of senators who are to draw up a report on the new electoral bill has not yet been appointed. It seems, however, that the opposition in the upper house has increased since the withdrawal of liberal ministers from the Mussolini Cabinet. Some measures adopted recently by the Government, particularly its action against secret societies and its presentation of a bill empowering the Government to amend the penal code. are strongly criticized by many senators.

The danger constantly mentioned by the Italian Prime Minister, that, if Fascist rule were to disappear only Communism would be left, with its ready program of government by workers and peasants to take its place ould not seem to exist. For the recent Congress of the Italian Confederation of Labor held at Milan, has been remarkable for the total rout of Italian Communists, who were left in a hopeless minority. Indeed, the resolution condemning revolutionary methods of Socialism was carried by 153,316 against 32,596 votes. The tendency which prevailed in Milan was that Italian Socialism should base future policy on "the traditional lines followed by the trade union movement in England.'

The Unitarian Socialist Party, the only one which has really any following in the country, will now probably alter its name into Italian Labor Party. Labor Confederation, for reasons which need not be mentioned here, has been unable to hold its annual meetings for the last three years, but now its influence in the labor movement is again making itself felt, and is already considerable. During the last six months a great number of its federated members who, after Fascism had swept the country had joined the Fascist Labor syndicates, are returning again to the old association.

4 4 A novel way of advertising has recently been introduced in Italy. It consists of a brightly colored stamp, with a phonograph or a sewing machine or some other object affixed to the ordinary stamp, with the effigy of the Sovereign. Some of them are so brilliant that they outshine the simple State stamp. As these stamps, however, have not been introduced or recognized abroad, a good deal of inconvenience has resulted. What happened is that foreign postoffice officials, seeing an unusual stamp instead of the ordinary one, destroyed all such letters to the detriment of correspondence in general. A circular issued by the Italian postoffice has now announced that the advertisement stamp (which has no value whatever of its own) is to be restricted in future to local correspondence, and must not be used on foreign bound letters. Such stamps will naturally always look a little curious in form, as only three of their sides are

4 4 4 Great surprise was felt when it was read in the papers that 15,000 marble workers of Carrara, all belonging to the Fascist trade unions, were on strike. Hardly anybody remembers a strike here, and the cause of the refusal of the Carrara laborers to work was due to the increased cost of living, which the quarrymen could not meet with their present wages of 30 lire a day. Their call was for 32 lire a day—about a dollar and a half—and the smaller marble merchants were quite ready to come to terms, only the prominent companies refused to agree, saying that their employees' wage was much higher than that of the ordinary laborer, and therefore adequate. For a few days the small town showed a very determined front; its streets were filled with workers in their Sunday clothes, and the quarries were a mass of silent white mountains. Things were becoming desperate, for the average quarryman has usually few funds in reserve and anxious looks were visible in all faces. Finally the influential companies showed a better disposition, and an agreement was reached by which, however, only two grades of workmen obtained an increase in their wages. The queer part of it all was that the local Fascist syndicates were at the back of the strikers, and as the Corrière della Sera remarked, the Fascist strike did not differ much from the Socialist strikes, the only difference being that the latter were organized by Reds and the former

Among the many customs which have disappeared from Roman daily life is one which in olden times was picturesque and exceedingly profitable. As the bridges of the river Tiber were not sufficient for the increasing population, at certain distances a small boat used to ply to and from opposite banks for the use of passengers The right to supply this boat was given by tender, and heavy penalties were inflicted on those who broke the monopoly. So strict was the law that owners of pleas ure boats were not even permitted to use their own boats to carry their friends across, even though no payment was made. All these regulations were engraved on a tablet which was fixed near the old bridge known as Ripetta, and which has lately been removed because i had become unintelligible. In some places one can still trace a faint sign with the words, "The boat passes here.

4 4 4 The International Road Congress which met at Seville a year ago will be neld at Milan next summer. Arrange ments have already been made for the coming gatherin; which gains each year in importance and influence. interest in the congress will be increased by the annual road exhibition which will be held at the same time as the congress in Milan. A better town for the meeting could not have been chosen, for Milan is the only place which can boast of a road for the exclusive use of motor cars. The list of states subscribing to the congress now number thirty-eight, the latest additions being Australia. the Government of Northern Ireland, and the Irish Free

"Will This Promote Union?"

To the Editor of The Christian Science Monitor: My attention has been called to your leading editorial Jan. 16, entitled, "Will This Promote Union?" in which you said:

The American members of the English-Speaking Union can only regret that that federation has been used by the Hon, H. A. L. Fisher as the vehicle for the disseminating of misleading reports concerning the fruits of prohibition in the United States. Speaking before that organization, etc. With your courteous permission, may I simply meuon several pertinent facts? The first is that Mr. Fisher's remarks were not made . any meeting of the English-Speaking Union of the United States, but apparently at a meeting in London our sister society, the English-Speaking Union of the British Empire.

The second is that these two societies, though of course working in close and cordial co-operation for the same general objects, are quite separate and distinct. One, with national headquarters in New York, twenty-eight branches over the country, and a membership which in the last three years has grown from 2500 to is an American organization, officered, supported and controlled by Americans. The other, with about the same membership, and branches in Great Britain and British Dominions, is British. In other words, there is not, as is sometimes assumed from the similarity of names, a single international or British-American organi cation, but two societies working in friendly relationship.

Neither dictates nor controls the action of the other In the third place, without presuming to speak for our sister society, I may venture an obvious comm Views which a guest may express at a meeting of any organization, when he is not speaking officially in its behalf, can hardly be charged to that organization, but must rather be credited or debited to the discretion of

"The Fascist War on Masonry"

To the Editor of The Christian Science Monitor: Will you please accept a word in grateful appreciation your editorial on "The Fascist War on Masonry." published in the Monitor of Jan. 14? I am glad that there is at least one daily newspaper in the country which will print such an article as this.
